Have you been thinking about study abroad? What about a funded research opportunity? In this program you compare the "East" and "West" which involves both the Loyola John Felice Rome Center and the Loyola Vietnam Center. If you want to learn more about the program, ask questions about the application process, and enjoy some snacks, this is the event for you.

THE RICCI SCHOLARS PROGRAM

This junior year study abroad program is an opportunity for students to conduct international, independent research during their junior year. Named after the Jesuit scholar Matteo Ricci, the program allows students to choose a topic that will compare cultural differences between the "East" and the "West".
